The symptoms of cystic fibrosis usually appear within the first year of life, but may not appear until late childhood or adolescence.