world-class directors as well as a permanent non-executive chairman, according to Monday's announcement.

The article just became too much of a pain in the rear end.