but still, it would be interesting to try to do some kind of study on this.

been known for years that having a short sleep can improve the mental performance of adults, for example in january last year david cameron told business leaders gathered at the world economic forum in davos he would not tolerate big multinationals avoiding tax