hartz is "aggressively investigating the source of the problem," the fda said all work for a while but if i ever forgot to take them for a couple of days i never had the same feelings these drugs work by blocking the reuptake of two important neurotransmitters in the central nervous system, serotonin and norepinephrine it's not easy, and we all have our days (sometimes months) but with a good support network, we make it through they're often intelligent and tend to stay "in the head" more than in the body
